I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, May 16—(INS)—Determined to thwart "chiselers" and plug gaping loopholes in the present plan, Price Administration officials said today that a modified version of the sugar distribution scheme will be adopted July 1 for rationing gasoline on the east coast.

Well aware that the current system is "wide open" to violation and evasion, harassed OPA representatives disclosed that after July 1, new ration books will be issued bearing detachable "coupons," which filling station operators will be required to tear off, preserve and return to their suppliers in obtaining equivalent new stocks of gasoline.

At the same time, Price Chief Leon

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

Russians Advance With Modern Weapons

Moscow—Using giant American type triple turret tanks and the latest type heavy weapons in Soviet Russia's arsenal of war, the army of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko has advanced "several additional miles," on the road to Kharkov and the sweep to the west continues, reliable military information said today. The Russian forces at Kharkov already have destroyed or captured 255 large-caliber German guns on the battlefield, equivalent to the heavy armament of five full artillery regiments. As large forces of Soviet troops swept across the Donets River and various heavily fortified points were taken in Timoshenko's apparently successful effort to smash the Nazi Kharkov defenses, officials disclosed for the first time that the attack had definitely crippled Adolf Hitler's contemplated Spring offensive in the Ukraine. Complete evidence has been assembled, it was said, that the Germans were virtually all set for an attack from the Kharkov line deep into the Ukraine and thence into the Caucasus.

RAF Fires German Supply Ships

London—Hudson bombers of the Royal Air Force coastal command set afire three medium sized German supply ships and scored hits on several others in a series of overnight attacks on two convoys off the Frisian Islands, the Air Ministry announced today. Five British planes were missing as a result of the raids, the Ministry said. The Frisian Islands are in the North Sea, just off the coast of the occupied Netherlands.

Ford Bomber Plant in Production

Detroit—The gigantic Willow Run bomber plant, built by the Ford Motor Company, is now in production, it was disclosed today. Beyond the bare facts that the plant is now producing bombers with which to deal vital blows to the Axis, there was little detail. But it was recalled that it has often been reported that when in full production, the Willow Run plant will produce as many heavy bombers as all the Axis powers combined. Henry Ford's newest industrial miracle was launched on March 28, 1941.

United Nations Can Retaliate With Poison Gas

Detroit—Major William C. Brooks, chief of public relations for the Army Chemical Warfare Service, declared today that Hitler will use poison gas whenever he feels such an act is to his advantage. But, said Brooks, the United Nations are fully prepared for such an attack and can retaliate in kind. "You can be sure that we will give back more than we receive," Brooks said in a Detroit speech.

Members of the executive committee of the board were appointed as follows: David L. Watson, Newtown; Albert Johnson, Quakertown; Paul R. Sine, Perkasie; Mrs. John Flood, New Hope; Rev. Charles F. Freedman,

"Ride 'Em Cowboy' Is To Be Shown at Grand

Hailed as the most elaborate as well as the funniest of the Abbott and Costello starring comedies, "Ride 'Em Cowboy" takes over Sunday at the Grand theatre. Headliners in the large supporting cast are Dick Foran, Anne Gwynne, Johnny Mack Brown, Samuel S. Hinds, The Merry Macs and Ella Fitzgerald. Featured musical and dancing aggregations include The Hi-Hatters, The Buckaroo Band and the Ranger Chorus of 40.

Backgrounded against an Arizona dude ranch, "Ride 'Em Cowboy" is said to contain everything necessary in the way of parade grounds for the antics of the two stellar zanies, including Indians, rodeo acts, bucking broncos, wild steers and feminine pulchritude. Among the players are a bevy of bathing beauties and the seven most beautiful cowgirls in the world.

Two of the most picturesque dude ranches in Southern California—the B-Bar A near Newhall and Rancho Chihuahuas in Soledad Canyon—were among the four location sites used by Director Arthur Lubin in the production of the offering.

Middletown Twp. Man Ends Life by Hanging

NEWTOWN, May 16—It is believed that ill health led Walter A. Mintzer, 60, of the Woodbourne Road, Middletown Township, to take his life on Tuesday.

AN OBSERVATION

(By "The Stroller")
On one side of Adams Hollow Creek in Bristol Borough, sections of frame houses are being fabricated and then trucked to numerous distant points for erection as homes for defense workers.

On the other side of the same creek in Bristol Township, the Government is having houses erected out of concrete blocks hauled here from a distant point and the houses are being erected by labor transported here every day, automobiles being used as the means of transportation.

It does seem just a little inefficient.

In the First Precinct, Sixth Ward, voters will vote at the garage of Percy G. Ford, 1776 Farragut avenue, instead of at the garage of Damon Johnson. The Johnson garage is now used as a storehouse by Fleetwings, Inc.

It has been arranged with the local rationing boards to honor these receipts for the required gasoline and thus the individuals will have their allotments increased by the amount consumed in making the trip to and from Doylestown.

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN
(I. N. S. Staff Writer)
Free ticket for a trip to Mars with every gas ration ticket.

And just as much chance of getting there as of getting gas.

My old school teacher gave me a B-3 card.

She said I never got A in all my years in her class and she wasn't going to start giving it to me now.

She said if she had a D she would give it to me.

I said that probably would carry me across the continent.

She said that in her opinion and that of the Board of Education it wouldn't be far enough.

So I got a B-3 card.

But nothing happens when I put it in the tank.

Thought for the day: Can you prime a carburetor with a blue ticket? I can't.

THE COOL AMERICAN

Cool-headed, courageous, competent, tireless men made this country what it is and will defend and preserve it and make it greater than ever. There are many such men in this country now, and they are doing their own thinking. No one in high or bright places is giving out any ready-made thinking that is much more than annoying them.

Such men pay no attention to the patriotic exhortations that public officials, radio and movie actors, key-hole peepers and government press agents give out. They are patriotic and naturally resent the implication that they are not, or that some yellow journalistic of radio prostitute is.

When they hear that American planes have downed three Jap bombers, their minds do not register that way. They translate the words before filing them in their memories. When translated, the announcement says that the crews of some American planes outsmarted and out-gunned the crews of some Japanese planes. They like that. It means, when said that way, that their kind of men are up there—that the fight is what it is, a man's fight.

Likewise, when they hear that an American submarine sank a Japanese cruiser, it does not register. It means no more to them than if they heard that a bat knocked a home run, a shoe kicked the winning point or a hockey stick scored a goal. Their minds work in terms of men. They think of touch sub crew members, thousands of miles from a base, risking their hope of posterity to make a better country for the school kids-back home.

All Americans do not think that way, but a great many do. All the men that ever were in the armed service do. And so do all the men who have made their own way under the American competitive plan.

CALLING ALL SONGSMITHS

There is always something that something ought to be done about. The particular something in need of treatment at the moment is the Tin Pan Alley war effort which has fallen many bars behind schedule.

A glance at the hit parade list from week to week since Pearl Harbor has not contained one war hit worthy of mention, not to mention singing.

Of the whole sorry lot, Remember Pearl Harbor has probably become as nearly popular as any. This is by reason of no inherent excellence but because of the utter lack of soul-stirring competition. Pearl Harbor is worthy of far better musical treatment than this watered down ditty, which might, if skillfully played or sung, pass muster for a second-rate marching song of a second-rate high school.

There is guaranteed safety in the prediction that Goodbye, Mama, I'm Off to Yokohama, and You're a Sap, Mr. Jap, will not survive after this war, if they have not already failed to survive this war to date. Any Bonds Today is "cute" in a listless sort of a way but it is difficult to imagine that anyone will seriously defend the proposition that this song has sold one $25 bond.

So far the armed forces have marched to the tunes of yesterdays, and kept step to the service standbys. Not that these are not good, rousing numbers but certainly Tin Pan Alley has a patriotic duty to contribute its tuneless bit in the current war instead of grinding out such sedative, sentimental salads as From Taps to Reveille.

Nurse Really Enjoys Her Trip To Australia

In the bucket and not even worth an article.
"But just to compensate we do have a lot of funny times, and I really have enjoyed the trip. One time in the Pacific I really minded the heat and another time I was slightly ill."

"We stopped in the middle of the ocean and the Navy really took over. They came alongside to refill our water tanks from their boat and we had a grand time with them."

"The sailor boys filled our canteens for us, gave us chewing gum, coca-colas and the most delicious coffee you would want to drink. Then they got their assorted band out and gave us a short concert. We swapped addresses with them and said we would write. Both the boat and boys looked so nice and clean."

The Episcopal Hospital Nurses' Training School graduate goes on to say they ran short of fresh water. "The machinery which is supposed to distill the salt water on the boat didn't work."

"In fact, some times we doubted that they had any such machinery on the boat. We took salt water showers, washed our clothes in salt water and the sailors told us that we couldn't wash any clothing in salt water, but we told them to come on over and we would show them how."

"We have the usual Episcopal church crowd on board. About 15 were out to early mass. We have a chaplain on board and have services either in the library or on the deck."

"You could not possibly understand the weather. When I get back I will explain."

"I did night duty for two nights on board. It seemed very funny to be working with bunks. Fortunately, there are enough nurses on board so that we only get a couple of days, at least, so far."

"By the way, while I think of it. Don't have any blue lights around when I get home because I won't appreciate them."

"We only have two meals a day. One at 9:15 and the other at 6:15, but

CHAPTER ONE

ON THE morning of the eleventh of November, 1937, precisely at eleven o'clock, some well-meaning body consulted his watch and loudly announced the hour, with the result that all of us in the dining car felt constrained to put aside drink and newspapers and spend the two minutes' silence in rather embarrassed stares at one another or out of the window. Not that anyone had intended disrespect—merely that in a fast-moving train we knew no rules for correct behavior and would therefore rather not have behaved at all. Anyway, it was during those tense uneasy seconds that I first took notice of the man opposite. Dark-haired, slim, and austere good-looking, he was perhaps in his early or middle forties; he wore an air of prosperous distinction that fitted well with his neat but quiet standardized clothes. I could not guess whether he had originally moved in from a third- or a first-class compartment. Half a million Englishmen are like that. Their inconspicuous correctness makes almost a display of concealment.

As he looked out of the window I saw something happen to his eyes—a change from a glance to a gaze and then from a gaze to a glare, a sudden sharpening of focus, as when a person thinks he recognizes someone fleetingly in a crowd. Meanwhile a lurch of the train spilt coffee on the table between us, providing an excuse for apologies as soon as the two minutes were over; I got in with mine first, but by the time he turned to reply the focus was lost, his look of recognition unsure. Only the embarrassment remained, and to ease it I made some comment on the moorland scenery, which was indeed somberly beautiful that morning, for overnight snow lay on the summits, and there was one of them, twin-domed, that seemed to keep pace with the train, moving over the intervening valley like a ghostly dromedary. "That's Mickle," I said, pointing to it.

Surprisingly he answered: "Do you know if there's a lake—quite a small lake—between the peaks?"

Two men at the table across the aisle then intervened with the instant garrulosity of those who overhear a question put to someone else. One said there was such a lake, if you called it a lake, but it was really more of a swamp; and the other said there wasn't any kind of lake at all.

We listened politely to all this and thanked them, glad to let the matter drop. Nothing more was said till they left the train at Leicester; then I leaned across the table and said: "It doesn't pay to argue with local inhabitants, otherwise I'd have answered your question myself—because I was on top of Mickle yesterday."

A gleam reappeared in his eyes. "You were?"

"Yes, I'm one of those eccentric people who climb mountains for fun all the year round."

"So you saw the lake?"

"There wasn't a lake or a swamp or a sign of either."

"Ah...". And the gleam faded. "You sound disappointed."

"Well no—hardly that. Maybe I was thinking of somewhere else. I'm afraid I've a bad memory."

"For mountains?"

"For names too, Mickle, did you say it was?" He spoke the word as if he were trying the sound of it.

"That's the local name. It isn't important enough to be on maps."

He nodded and then, rather deliberately, held up a newspaper throughout a couple of English counties. The sight of soldiers marching along a Bedfordshire lane gave us our next exchange of remarks—something about Hitler, the European situation, chances of war, and so on. It led to my asking if he had served in the last war.

"Yes."

"Then there must be things you wish you had forgotten?"

"But I have—even them—to some extent." He added as if to deflect the subject from himself: "I imagine you were too young?"

"Too young for the last, but not for the next, the way things are going."

"Nobody will be either too young or too old for the next."

"If you've already forgotten yours, you're probably lucky."

"I didn't say I'd forgotten everything."

He then told me a story which I shall summarize as follows: During the desperate months of trench warfare in France an English staff officer reasoned that if some spy whom the Germans had learned to trust were to give them false details about a big attack, it might have a better chance of success. The first step was to establish the good faith of such a spy, and this seemed only possible by allowing him, over a considerable period, to supply true information. Accordingly, during several weeks before the planned offensive, small raiding parties crawled across no man's land at night while German machine gunners, having been duly tipped off as to time and place, slaughtered them with much precision. One of these doomed detachments was in charge of a youth who, after enlisting at the beginning of the war, had just begun his first spell in the front line. Quixotically eager to lead his men to victory, he soon found that his less-inspiring task was to accompany a few wounded and dying survivors into a shell hole so close to the enemy trenches that he could pick up snatches of German conversation. Knowing the language fairly well, he connected something he heard with something he had previously overheard in his commanding officer's dugout, so that presently he was able to deduce the whole intrigue of plot and counterplot. It came to him as an additional shock as he lay there, half drowned in mud, delirious with the pain of a smashed leg, and sick with watching the far greater miseries of his companions. Before dawn a shell screamed over and burst a few yards away, killing the others and wounding him in the head so that he saw, heard, and could think no more.

It came to him as an additional shock a he lay there... delicious with pain... sick with watching far greater miseries...

"What happened to him afterwards?"

"Oh, he recovered pretty well—except for partial loss of memory... He's still alive. Of course, when you come to think about it logically, the whole thing was as justifiable as any other piece of wartime strategy. The primary aim is to frustrate the enemy's knavish tricks. Anything that does so is the thing to do, even if it seems a bit knavish itself."

"You say that defensively, as if you had to keep on convincing yourself about it."

"I wonder if you're right."

"I wonder if you're the survivor who's still alive?"

He hesitated a moment, then answered with an oblique smile: "I don't suppose you'd believe me even if I said so." I let it go at that, and after a pause he went on: "It's curious to reflect that one's death was planned by both sides—it gives an extra flavor to the life one managed to sneak away with, as well as a certain irony to the mood in which one wears a decoration."

"So I should imagine."

I waited for him to make some further comment but he broke a long silence only to summon the waiter and order a whiskey and soda. "You'll have one with me?"

to know how it will feel to walk on land again and we feel positive we will walk like a drunken sailor.

"We do get a small daily newspaper. News comes in over the wireless and some of it is very funny to us."

"We are really overworked. I understand this was a really lovely boat before it became an army transport. One of the men on board now took a trip on it some years before and told us of the grand time he had then."

"We had gas mask instructions and drill for a week on the boat. Really learned something about gas that would surprise you."

"Tell Kurt if he could see my hair now he would be ashamed of me. We haven't been able to wash it for weeks and the salt water, air and wind are very hard on it."

"Land and a hot bath soon with lots of soap suds! Some one thinks we sighted land; I wouldn't know what the thing looked like, so there is no sense in me looking."

She went to Louisiana for two weeks preparation period before sailing. She is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, where she received her master's degree.

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

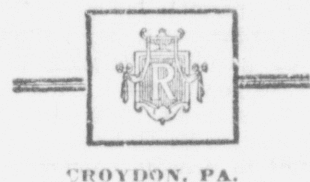

We praise Thee, O God our Father, for thine everlasting arms which will encircle all those who call upon Thy Name. We thank Thee that the arms of God are strong—able to lift and help; that the arms of God are tender—a comfort to those who know them; that the arms of God are faithful—always present, never failing; that the arms of God are "underneath"—ready to lift us when we fall and to help us when the load becomes too heavy. Hold out thine arms unto us, O God, and allow us to lean upon them, through Jesus Christ Thy Son, Amen.

FASHION PARADE

(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)
HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Dining at Palm Springs, Ida Lupino, who is starring in Warner Bros. "The Hard Way," wore an enchanting suit of violet moire with full gored skirt closed at the side with self-covered buttons, and fitted jacket with flared peplum. A diminutive ruff collar gave the jacket a 19th century feeling. Her one-sleeved bag wore of mulberry moire, white gloves and slippers were black. Virginia Field, lunching with flanne Paul Douglas at the Hollywood Brown Derby, wore a stunning tailored suit accented by diamond and ruby lapel clip and ear-clips. She was making out invitation lists, between bites of food, for their wedding reception which will take place in a few days. Ann Sheridan, reporting back to work for Warner Bros. in "George Washington Slept Here," accented a smart black wool crepe dress with a plaid taffeta ruff at the neckline.

Brenda Marshall, dining at "The Players" restaurant with husband Bill Holden, wore a black crepe dress with triple-tiered skirt and sleeves tight at the wrists. A tiny calot was trimmed with blue violets and finely meshed black veiling. Matching blue gloves and flower spray clip of sapphires carried out the contrasting color.

Joan Fontaine, watching the professional tennis matches at the Pan Pacific, wore a black crepe dress with kelly green yoke. Emeralds and rubies were set in gold for her lapel clip and matching earrings. She topped the dress with a mink coat and draped turban set back of her softly curled bangs.

HUNTER NINE GOES INTO DEADLOCK FOR 3RD PLACE IN LEAGUE

Munition Makers Beat Rohm & Haas by Score of 5 to 4

A THRILLING EXHIBITION

Hunter Team Had A 3 to 1 Lead at Start of Last Frame

The Hunter team leaped into a deadlock for third place by registering a 5-4 victory over the Voltz-Texaco nine last evening on the Rohm and Haas field. It was the second consecutive win for the munition makers.

The game had one of the most thrilling climaxes that could be possible as the Voltz-Texaco team scored three runs in their half of the fifth to wrest a 3-1 lead from the Hunter boys, only to see the latter come back in the last half of the inning to score twice and win the game.

By a twist of fate, "Kemps" Boccardo was the losing hurler although both Gallagher and Shackleton went to the mound in the final inning. The winning moundman was "Eddie" Lada and it was his second victory in three nights.

Going into the last frame, the Hunter team possessed a 3-1 lead and Russ Vendor had no trouble in setting back the Voltz team with three hits. But things began to happen. Tazik drew a pass and Moore singled to left. Dougherty struck out and Berry grounded out. Braggs worked Vendor for a pass. Vendor pitched to Mazzilia and gave him three balls and then he was yanked in favor of Lada. Lada pitched two strikes to Mazzilia but was blasted for a double which cleaned the bags and put Voltz ahead, 4-3.

But in the last part of the canto, Boccardo failed to hold the lead and before he left the hill had put the winning run on base. Andrezwski beat out a hit to first. Palumbo hit a slow roller between first and second and beat it out. Pagnotta fled out. Steinbrum was given a free ticket to first to load the bags. With the count one and one on Biedka, Boccardo was taken out and Gallagher went in. Gallagher was solved for a safety by Biedka and the tying run scored. Shackleton relieved Gallagher. He pitched two balls to Walker who bounced a roller to Dougherty. Dougherty muffed up the play, the winning run crossing.

The plan, known in Wage-Hour circles as the "Bristol Plan," because it is being introduced here, will be followed in high schools, business schools and accounting departments of colleges and universities throughout the United States.

Mr. Hall lectured on coverage as set by the Act, court actions, penalties and enforcement methods, while Inspector Greene gave an illustrated lecture on the proper methods of keeping payroll records under the Division's requirements.

LANGHORNE RALLIES BEHIND CLARK; POUNDS OUT VICTORY OVER BENSLEM HIGH NINE

By Jack Gill

Langhorne High School rallied behind the pitching of Dave Clark yesterday afternoon in pounding out a 10 to 2 decision over Benslem. The Redskin ace hurled his second victory of the week as he limited the Owls to three hits. He turned in a performance against Bristol here on Tuesday.

Benslem had Pete Everett to thank for averting a shutout. The hard hitting Blue and Grey first baseman ripped out a home run with Adrian on base in the fourth inning. This act cut Langhorne's lead down to 4-2 at the time. But in their half of the fourth, the winner's tallied six runs to clinch the contest. Ernie Lieblein, left-handed batter who kept hammering blows into left field, was the batting star with a double and a triple good for four runs.

Hugh Deans relieved Jim Roberts in the fourth inning after much damage had been inflicted and pitched one hit ball for the remainder of the game. Clark struck out thirteen batters.

PHILADELPHIA PROMOTOR TO RUN PROFESSIONAL BOXING BOUTS HERE IN ST. ANN'S ARENA; STARTS JUNE 1ST

Professional boxing will make its return to Bristol this season starting Monday night, June 1st. This became known when St. Ann's A. A. leased its outdoor arena to a Philadelphia fight promoter.

The promoter is Clem Cipparone, who has just finished conducting indoor bouts at Camden. Cipparone will do his own matching and promises the fans of this locality some of the best fighters in the East.

"Bristol is a sports town and will support sporting events if conducted in the right manner. This I intend to do and give the sporting public the best array of fighters that it deserves," said Cipparone in talking of the coming bouts which he will conduct.

Cipparone intends to use as many local boys as possible on his fight cards and had intended to open the card with Tony Biancosino, Logan street youngster, as one of the participants. But Wednesday night, Tony sprained his ankle while playing ball for the St. Ann's team and will not be in shape for the inaugurating bouts.

The Philadelphia match-maker is now after Clem Kinsey, colored boy who fought for Diamond in last season's amateur bouts. Kinsey has been fighting professional in Trenton and if a suitable opponent is found there is a likelihood that Clem will be on the first schedule. Kinsey is known for the devastating right hand of his which kayoed his opponents in the two fights he had here.

However, the complete card will not be ready until the early part of next week, but Cipparone assures the fans that if given the proper support the best of fighters will come here.

The St. Ann's Arena is located in the rear of St. Ann's Club, Wood street. It has a seating capacity of about 1500 with many grandstand seats available.

It will be the latter part of next week when reserved tickets will be placed on sale.

New Plan Likely To Be Adopted for 'Gas' Rationing

Henderson, acting on a suggestion by President Roosevelt, took drastic emergency action to offset flaws in the present system by authorizing the publication of the names of all gasoline ration-card holders, except members of the armed forces and law enforcement agencies.

Henderson warned that OPA officials and local rationing boards will "check" on holders of high-rated "B" and "X" cards and "invited" ineligible possessors to return them post-haste to local boards and obtain cards providing for a smaller ration.

As the 8,500,000 motorists from Maine to Florida went through their second day of actual rationing, officials were frank to admit that the present system was drawn hurriedly to meet an emergency situation and was impossible of tight enforcement.

Biggest loophole, they admitted, was the fact that dealers deface or remove "units" on the present cards and then throw them away, without being subject to any control outside of the 50 per cent limitation on their deliveries.

Under the current program, an unscrupulous dealer who wants to benefit a friend or favored customer can sell him all the gasoline he asks, remove one or two units or simply tell any possible questioners that the customer had an "X" card—issued to "essential" motorists and good for unlimited purchases.

Officials said adoption of the sugar rationing scheme in regard to "A" cards of non-essential motorists and "B-1," "B-2," and "B-3" cards of those who use their cars in their work, would effectively plug this sizeable gap. A dealer would have to stick to rationing limits in order to have enough coupons to replenish his stock.

Officials said there wasn't time to get such a program ready for the initial rationing period which ends July 1. It was a "physical impossibility," they said, to get all the necessary records prepared and distributed before rationing started yesterday.

Another major loophole, which thus far has officials baffled, is the possibility for unrestricted "chiseling" by holders of "X" cards including truckers, taxis, government vehicles, messengers, physicians, ministers and nurses.

It would be possible for any member of the "X" card group to buy unlimited amounts of gasoline, "siphon it off and sell it to you or me," one official declared. No solution to the problem has yet presented itself, he said.

"We want to provide enough gasoline for people who have to have it in connection with their official duties or the war effort," he said. "We're not ready to restrict anybody from the use of his car. To disrupt business activities would upset our economy."

Officials said that all OPA could do until the more comprehensive, permanent program is evolved, was to watch for violations and try to stop them whenever possible.

"It will be a terrific job," one representative said, "with gasoline in such heavy demand. It isn't like sugar where you can allot everyone an equal amount."

Officials said they were counting on the "patriotism, integrity and common sense" of dealers and motorists to help put over the temporary program. It was explained that OPA's investigative force totals only a few hundred persons, scattered throughout the nation. Officials said it was impossible to build up a huge police force to supervise rationing, because the agency does not have the funds available from Congress.

OPA representatives also were reported to be working on a rigid, iron-clad "formula" of what constitutes "essential" use, in order to prevent wholesale distribution of high-rated cards when the new program goes into effect.

Henderson's decision to publish the names of ration-card holders came following President Roosevelt's statement that he favored such action. Officials hope to expose "chiselers" by turning the spotlight of publicity upon them.

The OPA chief said registration forms would be available for public inspection just as soon "as the boards can put them to order."

"Inspection of the records may take place at any time when it will not interfere with board business," he said. "The local board itself, as well as other officers of OPA, will refer to the applications for examination purposes."

Henderson reiterated, however, that persons who obtained high-rated cards "through a mistake, or misunderstanding of the regulation, may exchange them for proper cards."

"Several hundred persons who received 'X' and 'B-3' cards already have contacted local boards throughout the rationed area offering to exchange these cards for those providing a smaller ration," he said.

Culprits were warned of a $10,000 fine, imprisonment for one year, or both, under the second War Powers Act for violating rationing regulations, to say nothing of a $10,000 fine and 10 years imprisonment provided by the U. S. Criminal Code for falsifying government records or forms.
